Tehama County was formed from parts of Butte, Colusa, and Shasta Counties in 1856.

History [edit]

The county is named for the City of Tehama. The origin of the name is not known. Suggested possible roots are the Spanish language word tejamanil (shingle), or "high water" in the dialect of local Native Americans.

Dye received Rancho Primer Cañon o Rio de Los Berrendos. Later in the same year Josiah Belden received Rancho Barranca Colorado [5]

Famous early figures include Kit Carson, who took part in a fight that gave name to Bloody Island and Battle Creek, Jedediah Smith, John C. Fremont, and William B. Ide, the first and only president of the California Republic.

Coolie Move' and confirms that a secret anti-Chinese meeting was convened in the town of Tehama, and an organization established to relocate the estimated 2,000 Chinese in and around Vina. Secret daily anti-Chinese caucuses in Red Bluff were also held.[7] Geography [edit]

According to the United States Census Bureau, the county has a total area of 2,962 square miles (7,670 km²), of which 2,950 square miles (7,600 km²) is land and 12 square miles (31 km²) (0.4%) is water. [8] Watercourses in Tehama County include Dye Creek and Payne's Creek. The county is intersected by Sacramento River. [9] A small part of Lassen Volcanic National Park extends into the northeast corner of the county. The highest point of the county^[10] is Brokeoff Mountain (9,235 feet^[11]).
